BY DR. MAYA B. FAISON

Meet OUR FOUNDER

Dr. Maya Faison stands at the intersection of experience, expertise, and empowerment. With over two decades dedicated to education reform, she brings both the seasoned wisdom of a veteran educator and the fresh perspective of an innovative change-maker. Her journey from classroom to leadership positions has been marked by remarkable achievements and profound insights into the systemic challenges facing women of color in education.

Dr. Faison's approach combines academic rigor with lived experience. Her 20+ years in education reform have equipped her with deep understanding of both policy and practice. But it's her personal narrative of resilience and transformation that makes her uniquely qualified to lead this groundbreaking initiative. Her commitment to creating spaces for healing and empowerment has already garnered attention from educational leaders nationwide.

As the architect of "I Survived Ed Reform," Dr. Faison is not just documenting history – she's actively reshaping the future of education reform. Her vision extends beyond traditional reform efforts to create a movement that centers healing, equity, and authentic leadership.

CHAMPIONS

"I Survived Ed Reform: Lessons in Leadership from Women of Color & A Playbook on Reforming Ed Reform" is not just a project; it's a movement. By giving voice to the experiences of women of color in education reform leadership and providing a concrete plan for sector-wide change, this project has the potential to reshape the conversation around equity in education. This project promises to be essential for anyone invested in the future of education reform and equitable leadership, but we need champions like you to help us move this forward!

Take a look at the opportunities within this pamphlet; there are a variety of levels available to support us. I'd be honored to have you join this movement alongside me and thousands of other leaders across the country.

In Solidarity,

Dr. Maya B. Faison

Overview

"I SURVIVED ED REFORM" CONSISTS OF THREE CRITICAL COMPONENTS:

A book that captures the narratives and experiences of women of color across the country who have survived ed reform; and a roadmap for reforming ed reform as envisioned and imagined by those who have been most traumatized by the sector

An accompanying documentary that brings these narratives to life, allowing women of color to use their own voices to speak truth to power, ensuring their histories and stories can never be erased. Their voices will serve as a sacrifice to the sector, allowing those who remain and will soon come into the sector to benefit from the reform we hope will be prompted by this project.

A focus on healing as each woman of color who contributes to this project will gain access to a healing experience/ cohort as facilitated by a nationally-renowned leader in helping Women of Color heal from workplace trauma that is grounded in the intersectionalities of their identity.
